U. S. Maintaining At British

Carry A-Bomb

This is the third in a series of articles describing the impact of Russia's atomic bomb announcements on the Western European Allies, and of the preparations being made by America and those allies to cope with dual-nation possession of the world's most formidable weapon.

By Lee Van Atta

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(INS)—The most important instrument of American military policy in Europe today is the U. S. Third Air Division.

It is an instrument unique in concept and function which serves as a guarantee to U. S. allies in Europe that America is prepared NOW to take an almost immediate offensive should World War Three explode.

The Third Air Division has attracted much attention from the Soviet radio and propaganda departments. There have been dark mutterings by the Russians, and by Communist party-liners in Britain, of vast secret storehouses of atomic bombs being hidden in England.

Actually, there is no proof that America either has, or has not, store-housed atom bombs in England.

The known fact is that the United States is maintaining, at English bases, a force which could carry atomic bombs to the heart of Russia. Whether or not bombs are actually in England now, it takes no skilled mathematician to estimate the number of hours required to fly bombs from the U. S. to England for trans-shipment to any aggressor requiring atomic discouragement.

The Third Air Division is in England.

Vice-Pres't Barkley and Mrs. Hadley Wed Today

(By International News Service)
Vice-President Barkley and the woman of his choice, Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, will say their "I do's" today, culminating a romance which has captivated the nation.

The 72-year-old "Veep" and his 38-year-old fiancée will be married in the small, oak-paneled Singleton Memorial Chapel of St. John's Methodist Church in St. Louis.

The happy couple posed for photographers last night after a 15-minute practice session at the chapel. Barkley grinned broadly and his bride-to-be was alternately flustered and pleased. She said: "You'd think we were getting married tonight."

The couple's honeymoon destination is a "top secret" but there have been reports that they would motor to Florida in the new convertible Barkley gave his bride some days ago.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The imprisonment of Consul General Ward by Chinese Communists in Mukden was called an outrage by President Truman yesterday.

The Chungking Embassy and consulate are being closed in the face of advancing Communist armies and preparations to close the Kuning consulate are under way. Ambassador Jessup will review in Bangkok at the end of January developments with this country's Far Eastern diplomatic chiefs.

The Philippines led the attack in the General Assembly's Political Committee on a Soviet proposal for a Big Five non-aggression pact. The Assembly debated the Balkan issue.

Winston Churchill took issue with Foreign Secretary Bevin on German dismantling. Mr. Bevin said during a Commons debate that he wanted to be just but not lenient. Mr. Churchill opposed continuing a policy he said aimed "every force hostile to us in Germany."

The Allied High Commission agreed to permit the West German state to join two international bodies. The East German regime was CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 18.—A Thanksgiving program preceded an address by a guest at the November meeting, Cornwells Parent-Teacher Association, last evening, in Bensalem high school building.

The speaker, Mrs. George F. Ebert, past-president of Chester County Council of Parents and Teachers, said in part: "Pennsylvania was organized in 1793 in the Commercial Museum, Philadelphia. At that time educators didn't approve of P. T. A. Now they acclaim it. Parents' education is the main object of P. T. A. The organization can do a great deal toward educating parents; and knowledge of child training can be gained at meetings."

Mrs. Ebert made suggestions for increase in membership and attendance. She stated that selection of officers should take place in the spring, with installation at the final meeting for the term. "Thus officers would have all summer to plan for the next semester. Every member of the organization from the previous year should be given a place on some committee. Miss Barbara Yerkes, physical education director for girls at Bristol high school, spoke to the girls Jr. Tri-Hi-Y Club on Wednesday. She took as her subject "Health" and explained the value of physical education from the physical, mental and social viewpoints.

She reminded: "Physical education was brought to this country from Germany where only the formal side was stressed. Here in the United States we have changed it to an informal training so as to encourage sportsmanship, fair play, and co-operation. Through physical education the girls learn to recognize authority, to get along with others, assume responsibility, develop leadership, and co-operate."

"The mental health problem is a big one today, and there is close relation between mind and body. We need relief from strain and worry and get it through physical exercise, games, etc."

"The social side of physical education is of great value in that if we learn to get along well with

SCHOOL ARCHITECTURE
IS UNDER DISCUSSION

Panel Discussion Spearheads
Drive for Better School
Facilities

BY LANGHORNE P. T. A.

LANGHORNE, Nov. 18.—Spearheading the drive for better school facilities in the Langhorne-Middletown area, the Langhorne P. T. A. at its November meeting, held Tuesday evening in the high school, opened up the subject of modern versus traditional architecture in school buildings—and its effect upon the taxpayer's pocketbook.

President Walter Weir, who introduced the panel members, said that the executive committee decided on the topic as a result of the furor in educational circles which the October issue of an architectural magazine had caused. The issue was devoted to an exhaustive analysis of modern school planning.

Howard Gutgesell, one of the panel members, explained how the modern, functional school—as opposed to the traditional, ornamental type of building—helped cut construction costs by simplifying construction. Mr. Gutgesell said that in both industrial and residential building there is a trend to the one-story structure—largely because it eliminated a number of costly processes, such as the need for additional structural strength, two-story or more plumbing, and the like. He also stated that a one-story school is safer.

Afternoon

TOTAL OF 3580 CHECKS

A total of 3,580 Christmas club checks, for the sum of $404,004 will be placed in the mail at Bristol post office this afternoon for a few thousand lucky people.

These "lucky" ones, who had the foresight a year ago to prepare for Christmas, 1949, won't have a worry in the world as Christmas season approaches. They will receive checks ranging from $12.50 up to $1500 to "tide" them over the season that brings many expenses.

The Farmers National Bank of Bucks County will mail 2056 checks in the sum of $228,256.25; and the Bristol Trust Company will place in the mail 1524 checks for $175,748.

As practically all of the checks are mailed to residents of Bristol and lower Bucks County, with but a few sent to other parts of this state, New Jersey and New York, the business men in Bristol and the lower part of the county will benefit considerably. They have been preparing for months for the Christmas rush.

One family, members of which have been making regular payments on clubs at the Farmers National Bank, will receive checks totalling $4,000. First payment on this bank's new club is due November 28th, units at maturity being listed at $12.50 to $500.

The checks for Bristol Trust Co. club card holders range from $12.50 to $1500. This club shows an increase over that of last year when the total was $160,515. Checks are addressed to residents of Bristol and vicinity.

The Trust Company's new club is now open, the first payment being due the first week in December.

GOOD NEW DAYS

Anybody old enough to look back that far doesn't have to be confronted by batteries of statistics before he agrees that eating habits in this country have changed in the last 40 years. But it's of some value to have the experts insist on the point that Americans are enjoying better food than ever before. There might be those who doubt it.

The Department of Agriculture has announced these conclusions after completing a vast research project into food consumption in the United States between 1909 and 1948. Based on its studies, the department says the American people are eating more food than ever before — better food as well — and are in fact the best-fed people in history.

For instance, Americans are eating less bread and potatoes and more vegetables, fresh fruits and other health-building foods. Last year the per capita consumption of potatoes was approximately a third less than in 1910 while the consumption of vegetables was up 37 per cent.

Cereal consumption per capita in 1948 was 46 per cent below 1908 but consumption of dairy products, butter excluded, was 39 per cent more than in 1909. And as for fruits, the consumption of canned fruit juices in 1948 was 465 per cent of the average during the 1935-39 period.

Of course, the general conclusion is not really news to those who have been eating during the last four decades. It's obvious that Americans are better fed than ever. It is possible to accept the statement that they are consuming more per person, as the report reveals, despite the remembered appetites of men who had never known the eight-hour day.

It is hard to resist the impulse to look at the past through a golden mist of happy memories. But when the effort is made the good old days rate poorly as rivals to what in this respect must be called the good new days of these last few years.

Today's driver is known by the fenders he keeps.

When you see a man looking for trouble it's almost a sure bet that he is single.

Bottles of beer were used to put out an automobile fire in an Ohio town — and all that was burned up was some thirsty people.

Some men marry to have someone to tell their troubles to, and soon have plenty to talk about.

A writer says the average girl loves to cling to her youth. And he never seems to object.

When unions and employers become immovable objects, the government, it would have you know, is not to be rushed into becoming an irresistible force.

The world is still full of mistaken ideas like the former one that everything would be all right when Hitler, Tojo and Mussolini were defeated.

3rd Air Division Listed Important War 'Instrument' land at the request of the British Government. Its members are, in effect, guests of Britain.

It is not any single, continuing unit but rather a combat command headquarters which might approximate one of the existing air task forces of the Pacific, or the air support headquarters of Europe, during World War Two.

Under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Leon Johnson, Congressional Medal of Honor winner and veteran of air battles in both Europe and the Middle East, the Third Air Division has become a dominating part of Western defense.

Here is how it works: The U. S. Strategic Air Command, the offensive strong arm of America, has a number of combat groups stationed in the United States. At regular intervals, these units—comprising B-29s, B-50s and at a later date B-36s—are rotated to major overseas bases which are deemed essential to the national and strategic interest.

England has become a base once again. When the big bombers reach this island, they come under the direct control of Johnson who, in turn, works in extremely close harmony with the Royal Air Force.

Over a simulated combat period which might last from thirty to ninety days, U. S. airmen are familiarized with terrain conditions, with Europe's highly unpredictable flying weather, with British and allied flying procedures and with the all-important know-how of moving at high speed over long distances while retaining top combat efficiency.

This familiarization has double-barreled value. It not only educates American flyers in their task but brings the Royal Air Force fighter force up to peak proficiency as a unit which has operated both with and against the U. S. bombers in maneuvers over England and the continent.

In short, the months of getting adjusted to each other and to the differing command structures of England and the U. S., which characterized World War Two, will be averted in the future. Both sides are finding out "how"—and are finding it out now.

Recent Third Division maneuvers have served to test the air defense of England, usually regarded as the world's most rigidly supervised, and also to check the performance of modified U. S. bombers under what has been tantamount to actual combat conditions.

It is interesting to note that both the American bomber force and the British fighter force have been "gratified" at the outcome of the simulated air assaults.

As the bomber groups rotate through England, approximately 8,000 American airmen become temporary guests of their wartime ally. These airmen are divided among the combat units, an administrative force which serves to maintain steady liaison with the British and to "housekeep" for the combat units and the great air depot at Burtonwood, near Liverpool.

The latter organization is one of the most important of American operations in Europe, having been the primary support unit behind the epochal Berlin airlift. It is serving today as an air maintenance center for U. S. forces in Europe.

In the revised military thinking and planning which has followed in the wake of Russia's announced detonation of an atomic force, the Third Air Division is in the forefront of Allied defense—and offense, if needed.

(Tomorrow: From Paris, Lee Van Atta tells of France's role in "atomic defense" planning.)

Children Who Cheat In Class

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.D.

CHEATING at schoolwork is more frequent than most teachers and parents realize. Nor does it decrease appreciably as the pupil grows older.

Dr. Luella Cole, in her book, "Psychology of Adolescence," summarizing some of the researches of May and Hartshorne on cheating, says that a teacher can expect "cheating in schoolwork from about 35 per cent of children having average ability, about 75 per cent of dull pupils, and even from 25 per cent of the brightest children. In athletic contests and parties she can expect dishonest behavior from somewhere between 30 and 50 per cent of adolescents, without much respect to intelligence."

Series of Questions
Dr. Cole also summarizes a study by Katz and Allport on "Cribbing." In their study, 3,515 college students were asked to answer a series of questions in regard to their own cheating on quizzes and examinations. These students were asked not to sign their names. Thirty per cent admitted no cribbing, 24 per cent said they cribbed on quizzes but not on examinations, 33 per cent confessed to cribbing on several examinations and 5 per cent admitted cheating on all types of work.

Cheating was lowest when the instructor remained in the room, increased if he left the room occasionally, and rose still more if he was not present at all. "The amount of cribbing shown by students who came from high schools having honor systems was more than that shown by graduates of high schools not having such plans. The honest and dishonest students showed no difference in chronological age, intelligence score, or academic standing. It is entirely possible that honor systems give practice chiefly in honesty. With the present extent of dishonesty in classwork, an instructor is encouraging rather than discouraging cheating if his proctoring is lenient. Many teachers make sincere effort to develop honesty among the pupils by putting them on their honor and then leaving them without supervision. Unfortunately such behavior merely gives dishonest students a totally inexcusable advantage and encourages those who are willing to be honest to cheat in order to compete on an equal basis with the cribbers."

Early Practice
Unawares, many parents begin very early to practice the child in cheating as by doing work for him or solving arithmetic problems for him, and having him copy their work and hand it in at school as his own. Of course, this practice could be greatly reduced if teachers would not require written home work that would be graded as such at school. Then many parents bring undue pressures on the child to bring home high grades from school.

Parents could do more to cause the child to choose not to cheat at school if instead of talking to the child vaguely about cheating as dishonesty they would try to inspire the child to strive to learn on himself and thus choose to be independent and self-reliant. (My bulletin, "Honesty and Truthfulness" may be had in a stamped envelope.)

In a recent issue of a children's magazine appears a picture of two boys about twelve talking:

"Why are you so glum?"

"I don't feel right about having handed in to my teacher today an arithmetic paper I had copied from Oliver. I'll get a good mark that I didn't earn."

"I did that once, too, and also felt ashamed of myself afterwards. It's not worth it. Let's make a club and call it, 'Lean On Yourself Club.'"

Bristol Ford Displays New 1950 Fords Today

The 1950 Ford line of passenger cars with scores of improvements, was made public today by the Bristol Ford Company.

"The progress that has been made in performance, economy, safety, comfort, quietness and appearance will again mark the 1950 Ford as the car of the year," according to W. H. Alexander, General Manager of the Bristol Ford Company.

Production on the 1950 Ford cars was started Nov. 2 and the change-over from the 1949 to 1950 models was accomplished with only two day's interruption in production.

All improvements in the 1950 Fords have been geared to offer even greater quality than was offered in the high quality 1949 Ford Cars.

The new features embody improvements throughout the entire car — in the engine, the body, the seats, doors, frame, trunk, fabrics, instrument panel, brakes, floors and elsewhere.

STYLING of the 1950 car, although not radically changed because of the wide public acceptance of the modern design of the Fords, nevertheless includes several distinctive features to enrich the appearance.

A colorful new crest, derived from an authentic coat of arms dating back to the 17th Century England, appears on the front of the hood and center of the trunk lid. This is the first crest that has ever appeared on Ford cars.

Other styling features include a new hood ornament, re-styled parking lights in new positions and a new ornamental deck lid handle. This coupled with the latest developments in engine performance make the 1950 Ford the QUALITY car in the low price field.

You may see this New 1950 Ford at the showroom of the Bristol Ford Company today — Don't miss it.

Personnel, were principal speakers at the event.

While in Roanoke, the local representatives attended a meeting of the Roanoke Rotary Club at which Vice Admiral Livingston McCrea was the speaker.

Twenty-one Scouts from the Bucks County Area of the Boy Scouts of America spent the week-end at Camp Ockanickon where they underwent a series of discussion conferences and practical outdoor Scout skill instruction in the out-of-doors.

The week-end began with supper on Friday and ran through till Sunday afternoon. All instructions were under the direction of Harry A. Harchar, Assistant to the Director of National Scouting Service. Mr. Harchar traveled through Boy Scout Councils in this part of the country to conduct Training of Trainors Sessions such as this one.

Saturday afternoon, the entire group of Scouts went out-of-doors for a cook-out demonstration featuring the exclusive use of aluminum foil as the only equipment used. After the demonstration, Scouts cooked their own meal in the same manner.

Certificates have been presented to the Council Scouts who took part in this Training of Trainors Sessions. The recipients are Sol. A. Miller, Kenneth Shelly, Philip Balaban, George Vaught, John H. Noble, Charles VanRensselaer, Charles Ramer, Wayne Woodland, S. Walter Smith, Joseph Hughes, Danile Guzmich, Ralph Bird, Ralph Wait and Charles J. Folk, Jr. Field Executive.

Few Turkeys Offered At The Solebury Sale

SOLEBURY, Nov. 18 — Few turkeys were offered at the Rice Brothers auction sale, here, this week, in spite of the fact that Thanksgiving is such a short distance away.

One representative stated he feels the owners are holding the birds with expectation of higher prices.

Turkey hens sold for 40 to 55¢ a pound, and the toms from 27 to 48 cents a pound.

Approximately 1,200 persons attended the auction, proceeds of which were $534.66. The sale of poultry amounted to $2500.35. With the exception of turkeys, the offering of poultry was quite large, and the demand was keen. Live-stock sales amounted to $2140.65.

The sale of pigs was somewhat better than usual, and of the 101 head offered, 73 were sold at the following figures: fat hogs, $22 to $26.50; brood sows, $55 to $75; shoats, $9 to $13, and small pigs, $6.30 to $8.50.

Sales in the livestock department were described as fair. The following prices were received in this department: three cows, $51 to $170; heifer, $42.50; seventeen calves, $5 to $19 each and 24 to 30 cents a pound; bull, $112.50; steer, $125, and fifteen goats, $2.50 to $10.50.

State Employs Fisherman To Make Fish Beautiful

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18—(INS) —The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania employs a fisherman whose job is "beautifying" catfish.

Twice a year, John J. Wopart, superintendent of the State Fish Hatchery at Torresdale, Pa., takes his crew of four to the Delaware River.

Here they string fish nets on the river's bottom near Torresdale and wait for the catfish to swarm into the trap. This year Wopart and crew captured 125,000 of them.

Wopart then hauls the catfish to his hatchery where they are prepared for shipping and dumped into large tank trucks.

They are then taken to one of 11 counties in the eastern part of the State and turned into the streams and ponds for the State's "real" fishermen.

Wopart explains that catfish must go through this process because they are oily, not edible and in need of a fresh water bath when they emerge from the Delaware.

Wopart says this makes catfish fit for any table but he prefers that they stay off his.

than the multi-story type, since all the pupils would be at ground floor level and there were no stairways.

Dr. Charles Boehm, county superintendent of schools, who followed Mr. Gutgesell, said he found a great deal in favor of the one-story functional type of building, utilizing modern scientific methods of engineering and construction. He said that the use of modern acoustical materials, for example, helps reduce the strain on teachers. He pointed out, however, that a good many communities are opposed to functional school buildings because people feel they look like factories or airport buildings and that many architects hesitate to design such schools because they do not want to be identified with a type of building that many people, wedded to colonial architecture, find unattractive.

A lively question and answer period followed the discussion. The first ten people to take part in the general discussion were awarded prizes consisting of a package of sugar and a pack of cigarettes.

The lucky name tag prize, a Thanksgiving turkey, was won by Mrs. Fred A. Holly, Parkland. Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria. There was pumpkin pie and coffee.

Because of the interest developed by the discussion, Mr. Weir said that the PTA will turn over three copies of the architectural article to the Langhorne Library, where anyone interested can pursue the subject further. The PTA also gave three copies of the article to Dr.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELKERSON

Believe it or not... here is an actual happening which occurred Wednesday morning of this week, and I saw all of the evidence. J. S. Fine, one of Bristol's few sportsmen with a real "know how" in the art of duck hunting, and his cousin, Ott Fine, set up their stool (decoys) bright and early Wednesday morning in the River, just below the Bristol-Burlington Bridge.

Then they scuffled off in their duckboat and waited for action. Action they did get, but not the usual type. It was a bright, clear morning and the ducks that were moving were high in the air. None settled in the decoys.

Suddenly one of the decoys began to move in circles and bob up and down with great frenzy. The first thought of the Fines was that a live duck had settled in the decoys unobserved by them, and J. S. was on the verge of shooting. A tally, however, revealed the same number of decoys as originally put out by the men.

Here's the "believe it or not" part of the story: When the men decided to quit they scuffled up on the decoys to put them in the boat, but the one decoy still kept moving about in an unexplainable manner... that is until J. S. started to pick it up. On the anchor string of the decoy was a 10-pound carp!

The fish had apparently been hooked by a fisherman at some previous time and broken the line, for one hook remained in the carp's mouth, and a section of line with two other hooks attached was left dangling. It was one of those two other hooks which became fouled in the anchor line of the hunters' decoy!

I saw the carp when the men docked at the Anchor Yacht Club. The broken fishing line with three hooks attached (one still in the carp's mouth) was just as reported.

Stocking... on Monday of this week a load of yellow perch and catfish was received from the Torrens Hatchery of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission for stocking in Silver Lake, Maple Beach and the Canal from Bristol to New Hope. Here are the distribution figures: Silver Lake—600 catfish and 1000 yellow perch; Maple Beach—500 yellow perch; Canal—1000 yellow perch. The catfish were of fair size, but the yellow perch, although in fine condition, did not measure more than 4 inches.

Shoot... this Sunday, November 20, the Edgely Rod & Gun Club will hold a bluecock target shoot over its trap. The shoot, which will get underway at 1 p. m., is open to everyone.

Bad news for fishermen... President Truman vetoed the Dingell Bill which would have given the States an appreciable return on a proposed 10% excise tax on fishing tackle.

In failing to sign the bill, the President yielded to the Treasury Department which is against earmarking of federal funds.

In recording the veto, the Federation News, official publication of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, had this to say: "The State Federation expressed strong regret in the veto, feeling that the measure could have done for fishing what the Pittman-Robertson act did for hunting."

Plenty of shooting... last Friday Frank Everitt, Don Moyer, John Johnson, Harry Bossler and I moved in on the State Forest Land at Edgemere, above Dingman's Ferry in Pike County, for some grouse shooting. We were posted in advance that there were few birds and those that were about would be jumping wild.

It didn't prove out that way, however, for within fifteen minutes after we started out we saw our first mountain bird. Sorry to say, though, he kept right on going after we shot. Within the course of the day we flushed at least twenty birds. Johnson, Moyer and Everitt dropped their bird. Bossler and Elbertson would have done just as well had they left their guns in camp.

Petitions to abrogate the 1949 antlerless deer (doe) season have now been received in Harrisburg from the counties of Bedford, Bucks, Centre, Clarion, Clearfield, Forest, Fulton, Franklin, Greene, Perry and Pike. They are being checked to determine their compliance with the law.

Notes from Newportville... from the Newportville Rod & Gun Club comes this note: "Last turkey shoot will be held this Sunday. Shooting will start at 1 o'clock. All shooters welcome. Winners of turkeys at previous shoots include W. Doran and J. Comalia, 2 each; and one each to C. Confer, S. Hanson and W. Wurz. Deer Hunters Attention: Time is getting short to sight in those rifles. 200-yard range is now open and can be used anytime except Sunday a. m."

TULLYTOWN

Mrs. Helen Nichols spent the week-end at Harrisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. John Updike, Croydon, visited Mrs. M. Lovett on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sterling, Morrisville, R. D., were Sunday callers of Mrs. Jane Starkey and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carlen.

WARRIORS TO END GRIDIRON SEASON HERE TOMORROW

Bristol High closes its home football season tomorrow afternoon as it meets Pennsbury High on the local gridiron in a Lower Bucks County League contest. Game will begin at two o'clock.

As a rule the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day is an open date in Bristol's schedule because of the Turkey Day classic with Morrisville. But in order to get the Pennsbury league game in, the coaches of both schools agreed to play tomorrow.

As the result of a forfeit received from Morrisville, Pennsbury still has an opportunity to tie for first place in the loop standing. The Falcons have won two games and lost one and should they beat Bristol, their total points would be seven, the same as Langhorne and Bensalem. However, that is as far as Coach Harry Wyckoff's team can get as this is its final league tilt.

Should Bristol win, it will be their third circuit triumph, giving it six points. The Warriors must win tomorrow and Thanksgiving Day in order to have any hopes for a tie or maybe the championship, if they are given a point for not meeting Southampton. The outcome of the Thanksgiving Day game between Langhorne and Bensalem will also have a great bearing on the final outcome of the league.

Coach McClister's Bristol team is the favorite in tomorrow's contest. The Warriors' record is six wins and three defeats. Pennsbury has won four games (including the forfeit) and lost four. Its last two games have resulted in victories.

The Pennsbury team will come here well fortified with wingmen in Charlie Saunders, "Ed" Miller, and "Pete" Leigh. Tackles for the visiting team are: Bill Briggs, Benny Pierson Burton and Frank Ferraro while the guards are Charlie Pagels, Harry Glads, Bobby Coia, John Cutinal and Joe Marazzos are the centers while the backfield men are John Perry, Bill Hibbs, "Cheatum" Robinson, Sam DiNatale, Frank Hunter, and Ed Curley.

The Perry-Saunders passing combination has racked up a considerable amount of yardage for Pennsbury and it will be up to the Warriors to break up this combine to stop the Pennsbury offensive attack. Coach Wyckoff also has a steam-roller back in Sam DiNatale. DiNatale hits the line like a pile-driver and picks up several yards on each occasion.

But McClister has his own passing duo in "Bill" Condit to Joe Dominick. This pair has accounted for six of the last seven Bristol touchdowns and has accounted for close to 300 yards gained in the last two games. Pennsbury has been drilling hard this week to stop the strong aerial formation of Bristol.

It is most likely that Coach McClister will start Rich and Dominick on ends; Weida and Milnor, tackles; Braam and Graceon White, guards; Albright, center; backs, Al Daniel, Bill Condit, Herman Welker, and Bill Moll.

MORRISVILLE - SOUTHAMPTON

In a Lower Bucks County League game scheduled at Southampton tomorrow, Morrisville High will play Coach Claude Lodge's Southampton team. Game will begin at two o'clock. Morrisville has won three games, lost four, and tied one. Southampton's log shows three wins and four defeats.
